Warning Issued vs. Harmful Anti-Freeze

A warning against certain anti-freeze which has caused serious damage to automobiles has been issued by the Boston Better Business Bureau, it was reported yesterday by Director John P. McBride of the Division of Necessaries of Life and Standards.

At the same time Director McBride revealed a simple test which retail dealers may use in determining whether the product has any bad effects.

Motorists have made complaints about antifreeze products, and dealers are cautioned to exercise care to buy their anti-freeze from reliable sources, as in some cases have developed in which automobiles have been badly damaged by the anti-freeze eating into the metal and rubber parts, as well as by freezing.

The complaints came through the Boston Better Business Bureau, which has taken up the matter with its national headquarters because an anti-freeze using calcium chloride as a base is apparently on sale [illegible] Calcium chloride is a freezing deterrent, but it is necessary that some inhibitor be used to counteract the tendency of the salt solution to eat the rubber and metal," Director McBride said. "The effectiveness of the preventive varies and it would appear to operate best with agitated liquids. There is a tendency for the salt to settle out and solidify where the liquid remains dormant, which increases the danger because of the possibility of solids getting into radiator fins, etc., and thus blocking circulation.

"A simple test to determine whether or not an anti-freeze contains salt is to drop a small quantity in the iron receptacle and heat, allowing the liquid to boil down slowly. If a substantial deposit remains, then it may be assumed that the anti-freeze is a salt solution. In fact, a small spoonful dropped on a hot stove would show this same thing.

"The company selling this solution urges certain precautionary measures to properly use the substance, but these steps may not always be followed by the motorist, with the resulting harm such as has recently been experienced."

Census Now Being Taken

Town Clerk William Cavanaugh announces that Ernest Crispo and Arvid Sampson are going from house to house on the annual canvass to list all residents of Wilmington 20 years of age and over.

A double job is being done during this canvass by getting a complete record of every Wilmington man and woman in service for the town clerks office, to be used when the town book is published which will list the names of all local people serving their country and for an acurate list to be used on the Honor Roll Board if the money is so voted to erect a board, at the next annual town meeting in March.

If any resident who has a relative in the service, is out when the men call it is very important that they fill out the coupon below and send it immediately to Mr. Cavanaugh, who is doing his utmost to have a 100% checkup on all servicemen and women.

With so many people working in defense plants, listers are sure to have difficulty finding people at home. Therefore the [illegible] of heads of families is urgently requested in ascertaining that they are properly registered as soon as possible.

In connection with the listing, a record is being made of all men and women serving in the armed forces regardless of age This will probably be the only complete record of Wilmington residents serving in World War II and will prove valuable. Housekeepers are re-

Local Board No. 11 of Billerica reports that the following named registrants have failed to keep the board informed of their current address, are listed as delinquent on its records and have been or soon will be reported as such to the United States District Attorney.

It is possible that this failure may be due to some oversight, but unless the information is promptly given to the local board such a registrant is likely to be embarrassed and inconvenienced and is subject to prosecution. It is barely possible that some of those may already be in the armed forces and that the local board should be promptly advised so that its records may be adjusted.

Rural America's Future Prosperity or Hard Times Depends on Farmers' Action During Present Period

400 Per Cent Increase in Income Over 1929 Causes Boom Danger to Rise

WILL THIS WAR PRODUCE A LAND BOOM ON AMERICAN FARMS?

This question concerns not only agricultural economists, but everyone who lives on or near a farm. Its answer will largely determine future prosperity or hard times for rural America.

Every previous war has brought its own land boom that left a wreckage of deflation behind. Under ordinary circumstances and with an ordinary war, the current situation would be ripe for history to repeat itself. The elements for a first-class boom are present. But from Pearl Harbor down to the moment, farm real estate values have defied precedent by remaining below pre-World War I levels.

Meanwhile agricultural income has zoomed to record highs, production has reached unheard-of peaks and the 1943 outlook promises further expansion.

Farm economists are frankly puzzled over the trend of land prices but they unanimously hope it continues. They credit the good sense of farmers themselves with the fact that farm real estate prices have risen so slightly thus far. They point out that while the danger of a boom exists, farmers themselves have the power to head it off.

Production Picture Brilliant.

As the 1942 crop year ends, farm conditions never appeared more promising. More than 15 billion dollars will flow into farmers' pockets from this year's bumper harvest. The biggest previous figure was 14½ billion dollars in 1919. This year's farm total is nearly four times the low-ebb depression income of 4¼ billion dollars in 1932. When operating costs, including taxes, interest, wages for labor, machinery and other items are deducted this year, farmers should have a spendable income of from four to five billion dollars for living, savings and investment. Farm families will have an average of $438 more to spend this year than last.

The production picture is equally brilliant.

For example, the 1942 corn crop is reckoned at 3,132,000,000 bushels —a record exceeded only by 1920 and then by but a slight margin. The crop ordinarily runs between 2 and 2½ billion bushels, but dipped down to 1½ billion in the drouth years of 1934 and 1936. Despite the huge 1942 crop, corn commands a high price.

The wheat yield this year will be the largest since the miracle crop of 1915 and the market price is the highest since 1929.

Hogs have returned to their traditional role of "mortgage lifter." They are more numerous than ever and worth more per pound. The $5 hog of a few years ago has been replaced by the $15 hog. In excess of a 100 million hog crop was figured for this year and even more production is expected for 1943.

Beef prices are the highest since 1920. It is estimated that on January 1, 1943, cattle and calves will number about 77 million head—or more than a three million increase for each of the last two years. The 1942 calf crop is probably the highest on record, totaling 32 million head. Sheep and lamb marketings have established records and the average price is the best in 20 years.

Niagara of Milk.

A Niagara of milk, exceeding 120 billion pounds, will have cascaded into dairy pails throughout the United States by the end of this year. More milk cows are grazing America's pastures than ever before—26,000,000 to be exact. Egg production for 1942 is estimated at 50 billion. Poultrymen are receiving top prices for their production. And to mention one or two other items, there is more hay than ever; and the potato crop of 376,309,000 bushels beats all previous records.

Ordinarily whenever an industry does as well as farming has done, there is a tendency to speculate. Those already in the business seek to expand their operations. Others seek to get in on the bonanza. And soon a spiralling boom is born.

A survey of the rural real estate market recently revealed that farms are selling in increasing numbers, but no unusual price advances are yet noticeable.

The Farm Credit corporation and insurance companies have been leaders in liquidating their farm holdings. It is estimated that the FCA has disposed of more than 23,000 farms since 1938. Some insurance companies report they have sold more than 90 per cent of the farms they acquired during the depression. In recent months thousands of Midwest farms have changed hands in individual farm auction sales.

Analysis of the transactions revealed that 60 per cent of the buyers were farmers, half of whom were tenants.

Of the 40 per cent non-farmer buyers, a large group represented city dwellers approaching retirement age who have bought farms in order to live reasonably on their pensions and income from savings.

How long this paradoxical situation of high farm income and low farm real estate values will continue, economists do not care to predict. But they point out three factors which at present make the farm picture of World War II different from that of World War I:

1. Today's farmers would rather get out of debt than into it. Hence they are not bidding up the farm real estate market by seeking additional land. Instead they are paying off mortgages and investing their surplus funds in War Bonds. They are making needed repairs on buildings and building up their land's productivity by the adequate use of fertilizers and by other soil conservation measures.

Greater war-time demand for home and farm products has restored hogs to their traditional role of "mortgage-lifters" on American farm land.

2. The hangover aftermath of World War I's land speculation spree is still fresh in the memory of most farmers. Farmers are hedging on the future by "plowing back" present earnings into their present holdings without attempting any expansion.

3. The present farm labor shortage and the rationing of farm machinery are effective deterrents to the urge to acquire more land.

Let's look first at the debt situation. The extent to which farmers are using their expanded income to get out of hock was disclosed by A. G. Black, head of the Farm Credit administration, who recently pointed out that a large percentage of farm mortgages are now being paid off ahead of schedule. The nation's farm mortgage debt has been reduced to 6½ billion dollars—the lowest figure in 25 years. There are fewer foreclosures and other distress transfers than at any time in the past 20 years.

"Farmers realize more than ever before that a healthy, liquid financial condition is the safest goal these days," said a recent statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement committee. "Such a goal means getting debts out of the way. It means building up the blood strains of livestock and eliminating the non-producers. It means making needed repairs on the house and barn. It means paying particular attention to the fertility level of the soil.

Long-Run Earning Power.

"This last is of particular importance, for the real value of land is dependent on its long-run earning power. Thus any investment in a soil-building program that will pay dividends in years to come is an important contribution to a farm's future productivity.

"In wartime as in peace, the farmer can obtain valuable information from his county agent or agronomists at the state agricultural experiment station in developing his soil improvement plan. Such a program should include the raising of legumes to provide necessary nitrogen, the commercial supply of which is now largely required by munitions factories. It should include regular crop rotation and the use of sufficient quantities of fertilizer containing phosphorus and potash to encourage plant growth.

"It should include pasture improvement. By means of such a program, the soil's future fertility level can be assured and its immediate output of foods and fibers for war and civilian needs increased."

More, and Still More

Every productive acre of farm land will be called on to yield more food for Uncle Sam's expanding armed forces in 1943 and to meet Lend-Lease demands. As a result the value of farm land as an investment will be enhanced. (Above) U. S. Army Quartermaster Corps receives and allocates food shipments for troops. (Right) Rising demand for dairy products spurs activities in creamery and bottling plants and helps boost farm income to record highs.

Most farmers instinctively fear a repetition of the World War I land boom. Their hindsight has taught them many valuable lessons from the bitter experience of the 1920s and early 30s. If they profit by that hindsight, they can escape the headache of a land collapse.

World War I was a story of agricultural upsurge. Farm income rose from 6 billions in 1914 to 14½ billions in 1919. High prices and a ready market for agricultural products, plus easy credit facilities, encouraged farmers to bid up land prices. Farms were bought on speculation with the expectation of a quick sale at a profit. Land values were inflated from an average of $40 per acre in 1914 to $70 in 1920. Within those six years farm real estate rose in total value from 39½ billion dollars to 66 billions.

The sequel was a crash that still reverberates. Land prices fell from an average of $70 per acre to $28. More than a third of the nation's six million farms were foreclosed by the end of the depression. All farm land and buildings declined from 66 billions to 31 billions. Even today farm real estate is worth only 36 billion dollars—less than it was before World War I.

U. S. Government Is Leading Way in Soil Conservation Crusade, Abolishing Soil-Mining

Undeniably, farm labor shortages and the rationing of agricultural machinery are deterrents to over-expansion. With the War Manpower commission's recent move to defer dairy, livestock and poultry workers, some relief will be forthcoming, but labor will be scarce.

In all history there never has been a time when it was more essential for farmers to follow efficient production methods and utilize to the fullest extent every practice that will result in maximum output with minimum labor. In such a program, the importance of fertilizer is self-evident. The U. S. government is leading the way in its crusade for soil conservation and the abolition of the common practice of soil mining.

With all these factors in operation, it is evident that if more food is to be produced the present farm acreage will have to produce it. How to accomplish this is a problem farmers themselves meet, but experience has demonstrated that productivity can be increased if the soil's fertility level is raised. Tests have shown that the average farm's crop output can be enlarged from 10 to 30 per cent through intelligent soil treatment. This means taking advantage of proper rotation, the growing of soil-building legumes, the regular application of phosphorus and potash, and terracing and contour plowing wherever necessary.

Secretary C. M. Wickard Calls 1943 Agriculture Program Nation's Greatest

The farm pattern for 1943 is becoming increasingly clear. This topsy-turvy world will need all the food America can produce. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has called for the greatest agricultural output in 1943 the nation has ever seen.

More men are going into military service where their food requirements are greater. More civilians are working harder and will need increased sustenance. And peace or war lend-lease will have to be maintained for a considerable period.

If farmers will continue to keep their heads, refuse to speculate and use their surplus to buy War Bonds and build up their land and equipment, they can greatly strengthen their position in the months to come and fortify themselves for the future. The answer to whether or not America faces another disastrous land boom is largely in their hands. If they will avoid the pitfalls of overexpansion, then they will move out of this war greatly improved financially and in their future outlook.

At any rate, as of right now, this one is delayed; seems, according to Lieutenant Ney's announcement, that there was no place where they could be married until 10 o'clock, when the time came, so they decided to wait.

Property Holders To File Lists By Jan. 31

The Board of Assessors notifies all owners of personal property that the law requires them to file true lists of their personal property and polls at the assessors' office on or before January 31, 1943. Also included in the list of such property are unregistered cars.

These lists are used as the basis for assessment of personal property taxes here, and if a list is not filed by January 31, the assessors are required by law to estimate the value of such personal property for tax purposes.

If such a list is not filed before January 31 no abatement can be granted without first imposing a penalty of 50 per cent of what the tax would have been if the list had been filed within the time limit.

Don't cripple her chances for a better tomorrow

There will always be casualties on the home front.

Infantile paralysis ... Rickets ... Tuberculosis ... Spinal meningitis ... With these deadly enemies there is never an armistice... They always stand ready to cripple and kill.

But you can halt their deadly march.

You can help to give stricken thousands a fighting chance if you give enough soon enough to the United War Fund.

Those dollars maintain youth and welfare agencies, keep clinics open, hospitals running, enable visiting nurses to continue their good work.

They serve on the war front, too. United Nations Relief, War Prisoners Aid, the USO and other vital agencies need your help to carry on.

So don't close your heart.

Give enough ...soon enough!

Gas For United War Fund Workers

In allowing the use of a mimimum amount of gas for th econduct of the Greater Boston United War Fund campaign, State OPA Administrator Henry Pattman, Jr. recognizes the vital necessity of a successful campaign.

"However, I urge everyone to plan his United War Fund driving with utmost care," he cautioned. "Obviously automobiles should not be used when other forms of transportation are available, including walking."

Young women, either unemployed or engaged in non-essential work are now offered the opportunity of getting behind the boys at the front by becoming WOW's. A WOW is a woman ordnance worker employed in various war industries turning out ammunition and materials of war. The War Manpower Commission, through the National Youth Administration, offers to young women an opportunity to participate in its war production training program.

Training under actual production methods is given in machine shop work, industrial sewing, drafting, welding, aviation sheet metal work, radio technical assembling and communications. Young women satisfactorily completing a six to eight weeks training are assured of high paying employment in Greater Boston war plants.

Each trainee receives a small salary while training. Full information and applications may be obtained at the NYA office, 9th floor, 101 Tremont Street or at the nearest U. S. Employment Service office.

BOYS FROM WILMINGTON

It is estimated that Wilmington has now well over 350 and possible 400 young men serving their country in the armed service either in the air, on sea or land.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Don't help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Christmas Jelly Gifts

Don't you like the sight of brightly colored jelly flirting gaily with red, green, silver and gold Christmas wrappings?

There's not a nicer present to give at Christmas time to many of your homemaker friends whom you have met at Red Cross meetings, nursing classes and knitting sessions this past year than a small box of assorted jellies and jams—fresh from your own kitchen.

Jelly-making in winter? Yes, indeed. Chances are that you put up a lot of fruit juice during the summer—without sugar—and now you have saved enough from your sugar ration to make up a few batches of jelly. It's perfect for gift-giving and fine for boosting your fast dwindling supply shelf.

Remember if your sugar supply is slender, you can use corn syrup and honey. Just follow directions carefully.

Tangerine Marmalade.
(Makes 9 6-ounce glasses)
4 cups prepared fruit
1 cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, remove skins in quarters from 8 to 10 tangerines and discard white fibers on inside of skins and on peeled fruit. With a very sharp knife, cut rind into fine shreds. Add ¾ cup water and ¼ teaspoon soda, bring to a boil, simmer, covered for 10 minutes. Dice peeled tangerines, add with juice to cooked rind, simmer, covered 20 minutes longer.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into a kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well.

Bring to a full, rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire. Stir in bottled pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot marmalade at once.

You'll be dressing up many a meat-extender and meat saver dish with pretty accompaniments during the coming months. Try this bright jelly with your lamb dishes:

Mint and Honey Jelly.
(Makes 5 6-ounce glasses)
¾ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons dried mint leaves
2½ cups strained honey
Green food coloring
½ cup bottled pectin

Pour boiling water over mint. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Strain and add enough water to make ¾ cup. Add honey and heat to boiling, adding coloring to tint a light green. Add pectin, stirring constantly. Heat to full rolling boil. Remove from heat at once, skim and pour into sterile glasses. Seal with paraffin.

Lynn Says:

Boughs of Holly: Let's deck the house and the table with evergreen and bright berries. Here's how. Weave those extra branches you trimmed from the Christmas tree around wire—if you can still find some—and perk up with bright colored berries. Hang this on the front door or in the window or place on the mirror on the table.

Interesting wreaths can be made by dipping boughs in soapsuds or white paint. Nestle fruit or cones inside the wreath for the table and your centerpiece is ready!

Shape freshly popped white popcorn into cone shapes and set on a green pedestal to look like a Christmas tree—this is lovely for the table. Stick cranberries or gumdrops among popcorn trees for color.

Christmas tree decorations will be fewer this year than before, but you can string sugared cookies and cranberries and use fluffs of cotton for the tree. Old fashioned candles are nice too.

meat rationing period. And what is chicken or turkey without cranberries or cranberry and orange relish? It's like meat without salt, pie without a good crust, in other words, incomplete.

Cranberry-Orange Relish.
(Makes 1 quart relish)
2 large oranges
4 cups cranberries
3 cups sugar or 1½ cups honey

Cut oranges into eighths and remove seeds. Force cleaned cranberries and orange (rind and pulp) through a food chopper. Mix well, add sugar or honey and stir until mixed. Make several hours before using. Pack in sterile glasses and seal.

Orange-Lemon-Grapefruit Marmalade.
(Makes 3 pints)
2 large oranges
1 large lemon
½ medium grapefruit
1½ quarts water per pound fruit
2 cups sugar

Wash fruit and cut into eighths. Remove seeds and white core and cut into thinnest possible slices. Weigh. For each pound of fruit, add 1½ quarts water. Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook ½ to ¾ hour or until fruit is tender. Set aside overnight. The next day measure pulp and juice—there should be 1 quart for each pound of fresh fruit. If there is more juice, boil it down. If there is less, add water to make it up. Add sugar and boil rapidly until syrup gives the jelly test—jells on a saucer, or two drops fall off spoon at same time as it is held in air—220 degrees. Cool 3 to 5 minutes. Turn into clean, dry glasses and seal with paraffin.

Does the whipped cream get milky? The cats fall at the crucial moment? The table decorations look flat and pointless? Explain your problem to Lynn Chambers and she'll tell you what to do about it. Write her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Ill. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your reply.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Grow Double Crops

It is not fantastic and complicated to alternate early - maturing plants with the later ones, and planning the first to be harvested by the time the others need the space. Lettuce, for example, cannot harm tomatoes. Neither do squash or pole beans bother early sweet corn.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In 749 war production plants, 75 per cent of 434,800 workers arrive by private automobiles. That's why war workers must have tires.

When it is understood that 54,000 communities in this country depend entirely upon highway transportation, the importance of the rubber situation will be appreciated.

There were 10.78 pounds of crude rubber in the average passenger car tire made in 1940. In 1941 the rubber content was increased to 10.83 pounds.

The overall weight of the average passenger car tire in 1940 was 21.55 pounds; while in 1941 it was 21.62 pounds.

There is a farmer in Osborne, Iowa, who still carries as a serviceable spare, a tire that came on his car as original equipment in 1917. He jacks up the wheels when the car is not in use.

Congratulations On Twin Sons To Former North Wilmington Girl

Congratulations are being received by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parker of Reading on the birth of twin sons who have been named Ronald Clement and Richard Leroy at the Winchester Hospital.

Prior to her marriage the mother was Miss Mildred Johnson of High street, North Wilmington.

BACK FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Edward Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murray of Butters Row came home Wednesday, following a trip to So. Africa. He is a Merchant Marine. An interesting story regarding Ed and Mike Mosack will appear in next week's "Mirror."

AT HOME

Frank Livingston of Main street was brought back home on Sunday from St. John's Hospital in Lowell, where he had been ill for some time.

Charles P. Howard, Treasurer of Middlesex County, and Nathaniel I. Bowditch, Charles C. Warren, and Archibald R. Giroux, County Commissioners, have announced that at the end of the fiscal year 1942 there was unobligated cash in the treasury of Middlesex County in the sum of $304,155.41. This balance is the largest in many years. It would be known in private business as a surplus.

This balance is the result of careful management by all departments of Middlesex County. It is especially interesting because Middlesex County in 1942 had the lowest county tax in fourteen years, that is since 1928.

CHARLES P. HOWARD,
Middlesex County Treasurer.
